A Nation in a State

40% of people who said they weren't interested in LPA don't think they will lose mental capacity, don't care, or just won't tempt fate

53% of people who knew some one with an LPA are interested in setting one up at some point.

Only 1% of the adult UK population has a Lasting Power of Attorney (LPA) compared to 40% with a will

However, one person in the UK develops Dementia every 3 minutes<sup>3</sup> and 1 in 3 people over 65 will develop Dementia

60% of people surveyed assumed their next of kin would just manage things

45% of people surveyed (over 45) knew nothing about LPA

61% of people told about it were not interested in setting up an LPA in the future<sup>2</sup>

What is Power of Attorney?

Lasting Power of Attorney – (or LPA) is a legal tool that lets a person (known as the donor) grant anyone aged 18 or over, the legal authority to make specific decisions on their behalf.

Normally this is because they have regrettably lost the mental capacity to make decisions for themselves, relating to financial or health and welfare matters.

- There can be one person or a number or people acting as Attorney.
- One can choose exactly what they may do in their name.
- The donor can also amend the details at any time while they have mental capacity.
- Mental Capacity is determined under guidelines laid out in the Mental Capacity Act 2005
